The problem with Presets...

The reason is that the majority of packs are designed by utilizing images of a particular camera model. It is common for this to result in presets that work on one camera, but look terrible on different models of cameras.

The reason is that different brands create different colors of output that have to be dealt with.

To address this issue, We calibrate the settings we provide to your particular camera model!

Presets aren't designed to be an all-in-one solution, however, having them calibrated for particular models is sure to help find a good starting place!
