Tom Demac unleashed his Electronique Audio imprint in the year 2004, which was based on his slick analog set-up. The first releases, Critical Distance Pt. 2' and obstructing the Light" via Hypercolour and its label Glass table, launched Tom into the spotlight. Between DC10 and Freerotation, Tom's sets always keep the energy high and exciting and are a constant tribute to the Techno roots that set the stage for his journey. Through collaborations with Duncan Jones of Silverclub and an appearance at Aus Music with Will Samson to the raucous Techno made by Glimpse for Drumcode, Tom is always throwing curveballs at anyone trying to guess the next step he'll take!

Tom Demac "Here's an extensive selection of loops, jams, and recordings I've taken from my recording studio over the past couple of years. These recordings are rough and character-filled with many imperfections, but that's how I prefer them. The recordings were made using analog synths and drum machines mixed with hardware FX and pedals in my studio. Enjoy!"
