This library of sounds is designed to provide the sound designers of all video games filmmakers and editors with a variety of audio communication elements like beeps, Morse Code, Spatial Telemetry short and long signal modulations and oscillations crackle, transistor interfering, static drone sounds, electronic sounds, sonar pings satellite and space radiation interferences and military walkie talkies sound FX and more. The sounds were recorded with diverse sources and then processed with high-end equipment. The SFX are named in accordance with their content and then sorted thematically. To provide you with the best sound effects to use in your productions, all of the samples are royalty-free for commercial projects.

Ginno Legaspi review - SoundBytes Magazine:

This sample pack of 937MB is designed to provide producers with the ability to create cool communications sounds. It comes with a great selection of FX for transmission as well as static and evolving background noises, the sound of pulsing electrical signals radio interferences, and much many more. The 256 WAV files have been carefully recorded and programmed to produce samples that are ready for production. After listening to the samples, I'm adamant that this pack includes many ear-catching examples that are great sources for sound designers in video games television, film, as well as a documentary editor.
