DevExpress VCL Reports is a full-featured report solution for Delphi and C++Builder applications. It supports developers to produce professional reports, build custom report formats, view the results, print documents, and export reports to common formats. Reports are created from various data sources such as memory-based data, standard VCL-compatible datasets, remote API data, JSON data, and databases.

The tool includes a powerful Report Designer and Report Viewer that can be used both while developing the application and at runtime. This can be used in two ways: either the developer creates report templates beforehand, or the user can create/modify the report within the application. It also offers parameters, subreports, reusable sections of a report, and flexible layout options and supports them, making it best for business apps, database software, admin panels, invoicing software, and enterprise tools.

DevExpress VCL Reports also comes with AI capabilities that can assist in tasks such as generating report layouts, translating reports, summarizing reports, and creating report previews. They are backed by Azure/OpenAI's AI capabilities, which you'll have at no additional cost. The platform also includes localization, printing, and exporting to PDF, DOCX, XLSX, CSV and RTF, which provides all developers need to provide advanced reporting features to their VCL projects.
