What is a product photography editor?

A product photography editor, also known as a product photo editor or post-production specialist, is a professional who specializes in enhancing and retouching product images to make them look their best for marketing, advertising, and e-commerce purposes. Product photography editors play a crucial role in creating high-quality and visually appealing images that help businesses showcase their products effectively to potential customers.

Product photography editors often work in conjunction with photographers, graphic designers, and marketing teams to create compelling product imagery that drives sales and enhances a brand's online presence. They may use various image editing software tools like Adobe Photoshop, Adobe Lightroom, Capture One, or specialized e-commerce image editing platforms to accomplish their tasks efficiently.
