Entering a world full of dragons, trolls, or talking animals is an everyday experience for animator and storyteller Toniko Pantoja. In the last year, Toniko has spent countless hours creating engaging characters, creating animated shorts, and working on blockbusters such as How to Train Your Dragon 3, Trolls, and Croods 2. Toniko's technical proficiency and distinctive animation style have captured the attention of millions of viewers, helping to build a following of more than 335K users on YouTube and Instagram.

In this course, Toniko draws from both his professional and personal experience to assist any animation student in making the world their character lives in by creating the setting, designing scenes, and creating realistic backgrounds. With Toniko on with you, discover how to design an attractive backdrop your characters will interact with and play on.

Together with Toniko With Toniko, you'll:

- Ground and create a solid background by using the horizon line, two-point and one-point perspective, and the vanishing points
- Make use of HTML0 references to create a background that will work to tell your story
- Create a color palette with the images you have used as a reference to add the appearance of natural color to your piece
- Create stunning or subtle lighting by using highlights and shadows
- Edit your animation by using Photoshop tools such as the blend mode and opacity and Gaussian blur
- In addition, you'll have exclusive access to Toniko's work and how the artist builds his background as a full-time artist.

Suppose you're trying to design the background for your first film or improve your ability to design a realistic environment for characters you already know and like. In that case, the class will leave you with a realistic background that your characters can walk, move, and be part of.

What is Backgrounds: Create Stunning Scenes for Your Animations?

The backdrop in animations holds significant importance as it establishes the setting for characters and objects to come to life. Meticulously designed backgrounds have the power to elevate the aesthetic appeal and narrative depth of your animations. Be it a lively cityscape, a tranquil natural scene, or an imaginative abstract setting, thoughtfully crafted backgrounds play a pivotal role in shaping the overall impact and visual storytelling of the animation.
