Chaos Vantage sounds like a powerhouse for real-time scene exploration and rendering! Its ability to handle complex V-Ray 3D production scenes without time-consuming conversions is impressive. Archviz artists and VFX professionals alike can benefit from its features.

How to create a composite of your images using support for popular rendering elements such as "back to beauty" and masks for objects and materials?

You can design your project using "Chaos Vantage".

For Archviz artists, the ability to explore unlimited design variations by switching between options, materials, and lighting configurations is invaluable. Having a real-time companion view that accurately represents the scene while making adjustments is a game-changer for workflow efficiency.

Vantage's rendering capabilities, powered by DXR-compatible GPUs, enable high-quality renderings and animations in record time. The inclusion of denoising options ensures that output maintains exceptional quality while reducing noise.

"Chaos Vantage" Samples:

VFX professionals can take advantage of Chaos Vantage's playblasts at exceptional quality, allowing for more meaningful review and approval processes. The real-time ray-traced view without scene simplification or baking ensures accurate representation during the pre-visualization and production stages.

Features like live link animation rendering, batch rendering, and a user-friendly UI streamline the workflow, making it easier to achieve desired results efficiently. The inclusion of HDR monitor support and quality presets further enhances the user experience.

The extensive range of features covering lighting, camera, materials, textures, geometry, and post-production ensures that Chaos Vantage caters to various needs across different industries. Overall, it seems like a versatile and powerful tool for anyone working with complex 3D scenes and renders.
