Lyn is exceptionally responsive and a lightweight media browser explicitly crafted with graphic designers and photographers in mind. It has an interface that is easy on the eyes and can be used for image sharing, editing, and geotagging. In addition to a built-in movie player and PDF viewer, Lyn has a drone that captures every single format, such as RAW and HDR. Everything is easily portable with the use of a portable SSD. Users can modify images without destroying the original using advanced colour correction and metadata editing. Non-destructive editing is allowed. The software is seamless with famous photo organizers and editors such as Photos, Aperture, iPhoto, Lightroom, and many more. This makes controlling and sorting images easy.

- Browser: Four different media viewing methods with a built-in browser preset that can be further configured.
- Non-Destructive Editing: Make changes and improvements to images while retaining their original attributes, which gets saved in special tags.
- Sharing: The ability to post images directly on Flickr, Dropbox, and SmugMug.
- Compatibility: The ability to view and manage libraries created in Aperture, iPhoto, Photos, and Lightroom.
- Fullscreen Mode: The ability to browse or view full-screen images and compare them with a slideshow while background music is played.
- Metadata Inspector: Detailed information editing and extensive IPTC fields of your images for image optimization.
- Maps & Geotagging: Geotag photos and edit locations using the drag-and-drop feature.
- Colour Correction: Tools for exposure, colour temperature, brightness, contrast, curves, levels, Black and White – Sepia, HDR, vignette and film grain.
- Smart Folders: Custom search folders can be created and used for efficient organization.
- Other features: include the ability to import presets, batch processes, use gestures, remote support, retina display, and more.
