All models were optimized to produce the most effective triangles and polygons that range between 400 and 800% compared to the high-poly 3D models, so virtually any software, especially BIM/CAD, could be utilized. However, with specific software, the number of polygons available is quite significant for the software to be utilized and may cause your computer to slow down.

The quality of the model is diminished high-detailed objects such as flowers, leaves, and fruits will have less detail than a 3D high-poly plant.

SketchUp files support three rendering engines: VRay, Thea, and Enscape, including proxy files. SketchUp file types are entirely compliant with Skatter. VRay 5 is compatible.

The FBX file format has been tested and may import into the programs Lumion, Twinmotion, Enscape Custom Asset Library, Revit, and Rhino3D or export into 3Ds Max, Maya, Cinema4D, or Blender.

Do not use game engines; assets designed for such purposes must be improved. Globe Plants is still focusing on 3D models of plants to be used for 3D rendering by landscape designers and artists. This means that most of our low-poly plants would not be appropriate for creating games.
