Creative Ryan LUT – Special Edition: The Creative Ryan LUT will give your footage a professional color grade with a less saturated warm pop look. It's been Ryan's daily tool for his youtube videos and even some of his more extensive projects, like Shabazz and Lil Uzi Vert's "Shells" music video, which he directed, shot, and edited.

It is available in.CUBE format that Ryan utilizes as the basis for his cinematic style. See the settings he uses to see his precise style dialed in. This LUT can be used for ANY video editing software that allows you to apply the LUT.

Shooting Settings:

- When shooting vlogs, Ryan uses the Neutral Picture Profile for a semi-contrasted style out of the camera. He then applies a LUT with 65% for the perfect, stylized appearance.
- When shooting flat, you should set the LUT's intensity to 100 percent, allowing you to adjust your contrast according to your preferences.

What is LUT – Special Edition?

A LUT, or Look-Up Table, is a mathematical formula or set of instructions used in color grading and color correction in filmmaking and digital image processing. LUTs are used to map one set of colors to another, allowing filmmakers and video editors to achieve specific color grading and correction effects.

When you mention "LUT – Special Edition," it's not a standard or widely recognized term in the context of LUTs. However, it's possible that "LUT – Special Edition" could refer to a customized or unique Look-Up Table designed for a specific project, film, or creative purpose. These specialized LUTs are sometimes created by colorists or post-production teams to achieve a particular look or aesthetic for a film or video.

The term "Special Edition" suggests that this LUT may have unique characteristics, adjustments, or color grading settings that differentiate it from standard LUTs. These custom LUTs are often tailored to the artistic vision of a filmmaker or the requirements of a specific project.
