When I need to produce something quickly but still look great, Photoshop actions are a major part of my design process. I created two folders for actions with the ink stamp presets. There is only one difference between the two folders. The one with an outline is the one without an outline. This makes a big difference in the final result.

These presets are a time saver for me when I am in a rush. All I have to do is choose action and hit the button. The rest will be done by photoshop. I can then apply a background to the image and change its colour using the same presets.

The best thing about the actions is that they are non-destructive. This means you can always keep your original file intact.

What you get:

- AL's Rugged ink Stamp Action Kit .atn (With outline). With 30 print texture presets. 10 background pattern presets, and bonus action change the print colour
- AL's Raw Rugged Ink Stamp Action Kit .atn (Without outline) containing 30 print texture presets. 10 Background Pattern presets, and Bonus action to change the print colour
- Textures .pat contain 30 textures that can be used to create worn-out looks
- Background Textures.pat 10 Background texture

HOW TO USE THE ACTION

1. Paste your artwork into a new file or open an existing one. Select the artwork that you wish to create the effect on. Now, the most important thing is that Layer 1 of the artwork is named. Otherwise, the action will not work.
2. Select the stamp effect that you wish to apply to your artwork, and then press play
3. Photoshop will now create a new file, and then copy the element you want into it. It will then apply the effect.
4. You can now apply the Change Print Colour action to your print (Works only for CS6 or higher).
5. Select the Layer below the print, and then choose one of the background actions
