It uses advanced dithering techniques and colors from old ECS gaming consoles and home computers as its base, which adds a true retro stylization to motion graphics and footage. Retro Dither has more than 10 different algorithms for dither and 20 nostalgic color palettes with support for ZX Spectrum, C64, and Apple II. RetroDither has powerful tools to create new and unique nostalgically themed graphics. RetroDither is also flexible and creative with workflows by supporting adaptive and custom-colored palettes for import.

- Palettes created by the user can incorporate any video or image as the palette source.
- Analyze pixel data to create personalized color schemes.
- Smaller layered custom palettes ensure faster processing.
- Includes 20 pre-defined color palettes with diverse ranges, including those inspired by the C64, Apple II, and CGA.
- Adaptive palettes are similar to Photoshop's "Save for Web" feature.

Dithering Procedures

- Twelve algorithms encompassing error diffusion, such as Floyd-Steinberg, Jarvis-Judice, Stucki, and ordered dithering, which includes the Bayer matrix.

Scaling Down

- Use anywhere between 0 and 8x scaling down for a more idealized retro design.

Threshold Slider

- Adjust Bayer Dithering Disperse and 1-bit color palette remapping.

Converting to Grayscale

- Apply shades of gray to output palette colors for creative purposes.

Serpentine Scan

- Modify error diffusion algorithms for different results.

GPU acceleration

- GPU dual-core support for faster and better performance.
- RetroDither is the number one tool for incorporating diamanté dither effects into any project, giving it a retro look.
