Step 3: Once you have downloaded the le, navigate to the location you just downloaded it to, for example, the Desktop, (it will be a .zip le).

On the PC, right-click and select the option “Extract All...”, then click Next, and then Finish.

On Mac, double-click on the .zip le and it will extract the le to the same location you downloaded the .zip.

Installing the Brushes

Step 4: Open Photoshop (it will look similar to this)

Step 6: Click the gear icon in the brush palette then choose “Load Brushes” from the pop-out menu.

Step 7: This will open a window where you can select which brushes you want to load. Navigate to where you unzipped the brush le and choose the brushes you want to load, for example: “Photo Serge - Sky and Clouds Brushes.abr”. Click “Open” at the bottom right of the window.

Step 8: (optional) I also recommend using the “Large List” view instead of thumbnails, so I can choose my brush based on name & picture, instead of just the picture. Click the gear icon and choose "Large List" from the pop-out menu

You can also make the brush window taller by clicking and dragging on the bottom right corner of the palette. Your brush palette would look something like this, making it easier to choose brushes quicker

Step 9: Open a photo and start brushing! I recommend creating a new layer for each brush used, so you can change the size, color, blending mode or add a blur later without altering your original photograph.
