Earthtone Sufi Ney 2: We are thrilled to introduce the second installment of Sufi Ney – a meticulously crafted collection featuring professionally performed and recorded traditional ney melodies. Ready to infuse your compositions with a sense of musical serenity, these new loops are poised to elevate your tracks to new heights.

About the instrument:

The ney, a wind instrument made of reed, boasts a long body with 6 or 7 holes that can be covered to produce various sounds, reminiscent of a flute. Known for its deep, otherworldly, and impressive tones, the ney symbolizes the 'absolute' and has historical roots dating back to Sumerian society. The term 'ney' finds its origins in history and was first used by Mevlâna J. Rûmî, the first known neyzen. In 18th-century Istanbul, Mevlevi dervishes played a significant role in teaching the ney, passing down their knowledge through lineages over the centuries.

In more detail:

This collection offers 742 MB of raw content featuring 130 exquisitely played ney loops at 90/110/130 BPM. Each recording is presented in both dry and wet versions, providing a total of 260 files. All loops are key and tempo-labeled for seamless integration into your projects.

The ney can be used as a complement to other instruments or take center stage as a leading melodic component. Whether you're crafting organic folk, experimental, cinematic, ambient, meditation, live lounge, or electronica music, the ney will impart distinctive sonic characteristics to your compositions.

Please note: This pack exclusively contains new instrument sounds, and any other instruments heard in the demo track are for illustrative purposes.
