- Simple to animate
- Endless combinations
- Pins: Pins are small shape layers that are connected to the boundaries of a different coating - their mom coating. In case the size of this mommy level varies, they automatically move with it. To put any additional layers relative to the mommy coating, just parent them to among the pins.
- Boxes: Boxes are silhouette layers, solids, or precomps that are automatically resized so that they consistently include their particular pair of hooks. If some of the pins proceed, the box moves and resizes to make sure it includes all of the hooks attached to it. Boxes can be made for almost any assortment of hooks -- just choose the pins from 1 layer to make a box just about its contents, or even the hooks from several layers to make larger boxes.
- Intuitive Controls: Boxes have controls due to their boundaries. Animating them out or in is quite easy with the built-in controls for scale, counter, and anchor. Those values are all expressed as a percentage (of the box dimensions) rather than pixel values, which means that your cartoons always look great, however much the dimensions of the box vary.
- Lines: Form coating boxes may also leave one line rather than a whole box.
- Ideal for Motion Graphics Templates: Obviously, these lively layouts also work within Motion Graphics Templates (mogrts). The moment you alter the text of this template within Premiere Pro, the design updates automatically.
- The dynamic designs you produce with Pins & Boxes may even work on programs in which Pins & Boxes isn't installed. Consequently, if you build a template using Pins & Boxes, then you do not need to be concerned whether individuals using your template have Pins & Boxes installed.
- Build complex designs step-by-step: Pins can be produced for almost any coating - even for layers that are parented to the trap of another coating. This permits you to create hierarchies, in which the job of a coating is dependent upon the size and position of other layers. (Wish to place a layer relative to a different, distinct set of layers? As you may also cause pins for box layers, then you may initially create a box around the coating group and create pins with this box. By nesting boxes and hooks, you can create designs that are as complicated as you prefer.)
- KBar Service: Should you utilize KBar, you are able to do any Pins & Boxes function right from a KBar button.
- Scripting Support: You can also utilize Pins & Boxes Works straight from your Ae scripts. Utilize Pins & Boxes on your Automated pipelines along with your own customized workflow tools!
