What is Gold bokeh overlays?

Gold bokeh overlays are digital elements crafted to mimic the appearance of out-of-focus light points, often taking on a warm, golden tone. Bokeh, a term originating in photography, defines the aesthetic quality of blur in the non-focused areas of an image, typically presenting as soft, circular, or hexagonal shapes influenced by the camera lens aperture.

Primarily used to infuse photos with warmth and a golden glow, these overlays enhance the visual appeal of images. They are widely utilized in creative projects, including the enhancement of portraits, wedding photography, the creation of holiday cards, and adding a touch of opulence and sophistication to various occasions.

Available in digital formats such as PNG or JPG, these overlays can be seamlessly incorporated into images using photo editing software. Users can customize parameters like size, position, and opacity, allowing them to achieve their desired visual effect. Gold bokeh overlays have gained popularity among photographers and graphic designers, serving as a preferred choice to introduce a touch of glamour and a warm atmosphere to their visual compositions.
