It's just a coincidence that I've always enjoyed film photography and the look of the 90s and 80s. Films, music, TV shows, games all that were popular in the era of today have had a major impact on me and it is reflected through my art. I exclusively shoot in digital and my main goal was to transfer the feel of film photography into digital. However, many believe that it isn't possible. Of course, there is no way to guarantee neither me nor you nor anyone else will recreate the film digitally, however you can do this. In some cases, you won't even identify the film's source. filming using. In this article, I'll tell you about both popular and lesser-known films, their characteristics, and provide examples of scenes that were made using the film. These tapes are all available in my film presets pack.

p.s for the best impact, I suggest using soft filters, such as Tiffen The Black Pro-Mist filter, the Moment Cinebloom Dream FX, etc. They remove unwanted sharpness from digital photography. Be aware that none of the filters or presets will create photos that look like "insert the name of your favorite photographer" The idea behind this is just an excellent alternative to further work.
