This set of presets includes seven to Lightroom PC users. 5 of them are color, while 2 are in black and white.

First you will notice that there are five variations of the Inner Light preset. These can be used in different lighting conditions however they have the same style, your editing will remain uniform. The Inner Lights 1 and 2 gives the illusion of depth and contrast which is why they work well for images that are taken with the brighter light. Each is more powerful than the other. Inner Light 3 is a lighter version, so it performs great in images with backlights where you'll need to brighten the shadows. In the Inner Light 4 and 5 are more warm versions, with one having an edgier look, while the other is a bit more contrast.

The white and black options both have stunning contrast, but one of them works best with brighter photos, while the other is better for darker, moody images. Both of them have a slightly red tint.

Bonus Options for Masks and Brushes

I'm also sharing three of my top mask and brush settings!

One is my skybrush that magically brings out the colors and brightness in your sky (use this using the graduated filter). The other is what I refer to as Facebright which I use it using an radial filter on the bodies and faces that require to be brightened without brightening the whole image. The third option is my sun warmer, which I employ using a radial filter whenever I need to enhance the hue of the sun.

Like with the majority of Lightroom presets, be prepared to tweak a bit according to the photo.

The Adobe Lightroom subscription is required: LR Classic (v10.1.1+). Instructions for installation are included in the download.

This Inner Light Collection Lightroom desktop presets are designed for photographers who wish to keep the colors bright and still give your subject soft skin tones. These were created for photographers who shoot lifestyle photos. They've been tested with photographs taken during the golden hour in shade, during cloudy or overcast days, and in the interior with natural light. they make the most of your photographs in any conditions.
