Through NetSarang Xmanager Power Suite, users can operate Linux and UNIX desktops and applications directly from their Windows computers. Xmanager creates an easy platform for quickly and conveniently using complete remote desktops and individual applications. The software was created for users within mixed environments because it allows simple transitions between various systems.

The program allows users to start individual remote applications and complete virtual desktop environments. Xstart enables SSH users to independently launch specific remote Linux software while working with Windows applications without requiring screen switching. Users who need an entire remote desktop experience can access their systems effortlessly through Xmanager's X Server, which delivers smooth and reliable remote desktop access. Xmanager software detects remote host availability automatically, after which users can connect by tapping once.

allows users to link their remote sessions through SSH, RDP, VNC, and XDMCP protocols, and it has robust session organization capabilities. The software provides enhanced security capabilities through an OpenSSH CA framework and PKCS#11 module while introducing Windows notifications and authentication profile options in its version 8 release. Every developer sysadmin network engineer who works with Windows should have Xmanager as their essential tool to control remote environments through their Windows computer.
