Ginno Legaspi review - SoundBytes Magazine:

Another collection of sounds from Bluezone Corporation and this 178 Megabyte collection contains contemporary UI sounds divided into various categories like alarm data processing, alarm beep, the transmission of an interface beep, and sonar and interface transition. If you compose for television, games, film, and electronic songs, the contents of this library are guaranteed to ignite your projects. The samples were made using diverse sources like electronic synthesizers in hardware and electromagnetic field sounds. They were then processed using top-of-the-line equipment. The effects applied are apparent, and the sounds explode with energy. The best part about this package is that every 153 tracks are available in the 24-bit/96kHz format, which is the norm for post-production tasks. The recording, editing, and processing are top-quality and worth the low cost at which this package can be purchased for.
